MISCELLANEOUS READING. [CONMUNICATED. REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR, IN THE DAYS OF THY YOUTH

Come, while the rose of youth thy brow is wreath ing, Ere yet one thorn, has sprung to rankle there, Come, taste the balm, which has the power of healing

Each thrill of sorrow, and each throb of care. Come, bring the offering of thy young affections,

Ere yet they're chilled by Rarth's debasing care, The shrine of Heaven demands the sweet oblation. O heed the summons! place thy treasure there. Soon will the storms of life be beating o'er thee,

And pleasure's hand, its poisoned chalice bring; Taste not the draught! 'twill prove a snare unto For tears of sorrow float around the brim. Then when the hand of God is on thy dwelling,

And thy heart pines, beneath dark sorrow's sway, The Heaven-raised trust with which thy heart is swelling, Will guide thy footsteps in the weary way. And when old age shall cast its mantle o'er thee,

And death's cold hand lies heavy on thy brow, The lamp of FAITH, shall light thy path before Going from market the other day, we observed a very small boy who gave no special indication, by dress or face, of other than ordinary sensation or training in life, carrying a basket that was so heavy as nearly to bear him down beneath it. We observed, "my boy, vou have a heavy load." "Yes," said he, "but I'd rather carry it than mother should." The remark was one of a nature we love to hear; but we do not know that we should have thought enough of it to have chronicled it, had we not seen across the street a highly accomplished young lady playing the piano, while her mother was washing the windows. We have no reason for fore-stalling the reflection and comparison of our readers on these

REASONABLE CURIOSITY IN A DYING MAN. It was a bright thought, that of Smithson, the founder of the Smithsonian Institution when he was dying of an unknown complaint. Smithson had had five doctors, and they had been unable to discover what his disease was. At length they told the patient he must die. Calling them all around him, he said: "My friends, after I die, make a post mor-discussion on the subject, that I am dying to know what the disease is myself." The last Westminster Review gives the tem examination, and find out what ails me for really I have heard such long and learned following anecdote: "A clergyman not long ago was earnestly pressing on the attention of a dying Lincolnshire boor, certain doctrines which have presented difficulties to clearer heads under more favorable circumstances. 'Wut wi' faath,' was the faint response, given in the sick man's native Dorie, 'wut wi' faath, and wut wi' the the earth a turning round the sun, and wut wi' the railroads a fuzzin' and a wizzin,' I'm clean muddled, stonied and bet;' and so saying he turned to the wall and ex-

Je Fellow-Citizene:-I appear before you once more as a candidate for your suffrages to the office for the last three years, devoting my time and at-tention to its duties, according to the best of my ability. During the time I have been the incum-bent, I have visited several of the principal Gas tures plain, and give their post-office, county, and Works in the country, endeavoring to acquire a knowledge of the manufacture, distribution, and consumption of Gas, and have brought what infor-mation I have acquired to perfecting the Works which I have in charge. I think I can safely ap-peal to consumers to confirm the truth of what I state, when I say that I have ever been attentive to their calls, frequently waiting upon them at a late hour of night, with as much alacrity as at other times. If it should be your pleasure to confer the office upon me, I promise to redouble my exertions.
